You can never tell when a horse is going to develop a cur, split, spin, ring, or any other trouble. Yet it is bound to happen sooner or later. And you can't afford to keep him in the barn. Keep a bottle of Mendall's Spavin Cure handy at all times. John Mendall of 121 Brown Avenue, Chicago, Ill., writes: "I would not be without Mendall's Spavin Cure at any cost. It is a precious liniment for both man and beast." Mendall's Spavin Cure is a many-drug cure, $1 per bottle—4 for $3. "Test it on the horse"—free—or write to Dr. S. J. KENDALL CO., Eisenberg Falls, N. Y., U. S. A.

Don't fail to see the special three act comedy, "Boys will be Boys" at the Harte Theatre today. Adv.

Mrs. J. A. Evans and daughter Patricia are in New York, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Rice.

H. Harry Sharpe, cashier of the Bennington County National bank, is taking his annual vacation at one of the Lake George resorts.

John J. Fox, superintendent for C. M. Leach, the Boston contractor who built the new postoffice, is in the village once more on business connected with "those doors." The doors have been a subject for controversy between the department at Washington and the contractor ever since the building was first opened. They were condemned, partially remodeled and replaced and now they have been condemned again. Mr. Fox says that the bronze and iron work were sabotaged by the contractor and that the failure of the doors to meet requirements rests between the sub-contractor and the department. It is expected that entirely new doors will be put in.

AT THE HARTE THEATRE

Victor Moore in "Chimmie Fadden" Tomorrow.

Victor Moore is in another Lasky feature play.

Everyone who saw this inimitable Broadway star comedian in the picture "Snobs" will hail the announcement with joy for a funny man like this is a treat to audiences tired to death of all the old slapstick methods.

This time the character is that most famous of all Bowery boys, Chimmie Fadden, the character which made the literary name and fame of E. W. Townsend. Moore once played "Chimmie Fadden" on the legitimate stage, but he is himself the authority for the statement that the "big fun" is in the film. "There's so much more space to do things," says Victor.

"Chimmie Fadden" was first a series of newspaper stories in the New York Sun. Then it became a book which sold into hundreds of thousands of copies. And it became one of the most popular of all American comedies. Now it reaches the photoplay.

"Chimmie Fadden" was a tough Bowery lad, good at heart but mighty weak on manners and sadly out of place in refined society. Chimmie had a bad brother by the name of Larry with a penchant for second-story work and a dear old Irish mother. Moreover, he had an eye for beauty. And when he reached the rich Fanny Van Corlandt from the obnoxious attentions of a "masster" he caught a glimpse of her French maid—and his heart softened to the point of romance. This "Chimmie Fadden" becomes the story of the Irish-American Bowery boy and his "Duchess."

During the course of the story "Chimmie" is pressed into service as the butler for the Van Corlandt family on the occasion of a formal dinner. It may not have been funny for them, but this scene certainly sets a new pace for silent comedy.

Victor Moore is positively the ideal "Chimmie."

Come and see for yourself.

Glenwood Coal Ranges, Gas Ranges, Furnaces and Heaters, awarded Two Gold Medals, at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, San Francisco, Cal., 1915.

Glenwood Ranges are the product of New England's largest and best-known foundry. They are designed by makers of life-long experience. They weigh more, are put together better and burn less fuel than most ranges. The castings are wonderfully smooth and easy to keep clean. They are handsome, convenient and mechanically right—no modern feature lacking. Smooth cast, Colonial design, plain finish, compact structure, big roomy ovens, easy working grates and countless other features. Owing to their sturdy construction and fine workmanship, they will stand hard usage, do better work and last much longer than the ordinary kind. They certainly do "Make Cooking and Baking Easy". The German Aviator's Message

Most of us, we suspect, find the war news unsatisfactory. We don't get much out of it. But every now and then a story comes from the front which we all understand and which makes us believe that "all will yet be well with the world." One of those stories reached us the past week—the act of the German aviator in dropping a wreath from the sky with this message:—
To Pegoud, who died like a hero.
From his adversary.
The name of Pegoud's adversary is not known, but it is not necessary. This man is the kind of a German whom we have met so often in our daily lives. A brave, kindly man, with that touch of sentimentality in him which so often graces the German character. Pegoud's adversary is not the exceptional German. Rather, he is of the typical German. And, knowing this to be the fact, the people of the United States, and indeed the people of the world, have no which have a new flavour and form—a true corn flavour and tender crispness unknown to "corn flakes" of the past.

The new process raises tiny pearl-like "puffs" on each flake—a distinguishing feature; also imparts substantial form—the new Toasties don't mush down when cream or milk is added.

They come factory-fresh in wax-sealed packages—as crisp and appetizing as when they leave the ovens—and that's mighty good!
